1.	Respondent	Any and all claims and any other submissions filed by Claimants, either collectively or individually, with Italian courts or courts in any other jurisdiction against the banks from which Claimants acquired the security entitlements in Argentine bonds, in connection with such entitlements and/or against any other entity in connection with the purchase of said security entitlements. This request includes any claims filed by those Claimants that have withdrawn from this proceeding, whether before or after their withdrawal. Further, a request is also made for any and all judgments or court	Among others, Campiglia Declaration, 14 September 2012, ¶ 14; Santi Declaration, 10 September 2012, ¶ 17; Flagella Declaration, 18 September 2012, ¶ 7.	The existence of defects upon the acquisition of the security entitlements in the Argentine debt might have an impact on the analysis and assessment of the circumstances at the time of the acquisition of the alleged investment and its legality, on the finding of liability of the Argentine Republic and on a potential determination of damages.	1. Previously Requested. This request is repetitive of Respondent’s Request No. 13 in Phase 1, which was denied by the Tribunal for lack of relevance and because the documents requested are not in possession, custody or control of Claimants.	1. Previously Requested. The documents requested are particularly relevant in this phase, in which the Parties are supposed to have the opportunity to raise individual issues. Further, unlike the Request in Phase 1, <sup>1</sup> the present request focuses on documents which are in possession, custody and/or control of Claimants rather than of TFA. The Tribunal must assess this request which is different from the one in Phase 1, and even if it were not, the relevance in this Phase 2 is different.	1. Previously Requested. This request should be rejected for the same reasons that the Tribunal denied the similar request in Phase 1 – i.e. , for lack of relevance/materiality and because the requested documents are not in Claimants’ possession, custody or control.  The request does not focus on documents in Claimants’ possession because – as Claimants stated and Respondent simply ignores – we are unaware of any Claimants participating at ICSID that also are pursuing claims against banks. Indeed, Respondent has often focused on the fact that the TFA mandate documents preclude such simultaneous claims. <sup>2</sup> Documents relating to claims against the banks would only be in the possession of the defendant banks themselves, or any plaintiffs who may have filed the claims and are not parties to this arbitration.  The alleged relevance or materiality of	With regard to former Claimants: Rejected.  With regard to current Claimants: Moot and the Arbitral Tribunal takes note Claimants’ statement that they “are unaware of any Claimants participating at ICSID that also are pursuing claims against

Seeks documents that are protected from disclosure by Italian law, which provides that party submissions may not be disclosed to third parties.	3. Privileged. Claimants distort the Argentine Republic's request. The Argentine Republic's request does not include documents protected by the attorney-client privilege. The documents requested refer to court submissions and decisions, filed and issued in lawsuits brought by Claimants in connection with the security entitlements that are the subject of this arbitration. Such submissions and decisions are, at least, known by the other party to the respective lawsuits, and thus these documents are not protected by the attorney-client privilege.	3. Privileged. Respondent ignores the breadth of its own request, which includes "[a]ny and all claims and any other submissions" and "all agreements" (presumably settlement agreements) between the parties to the litigation. To the extent that the request includes privileged documents, Claimants maintain their objection. Claimants also maintain their objection regarding Italian law non-disclosure requirements. <sup>4</sup> Respondent does not rebut, and effectively concedes, this requirement under Italian law.

Indeed, the TFA letter instructions noted by Respondent simply underscore that Claimants have undertaken not to pursue claims against the banks while they pursue claims against Argentina at ICSID. There is no risk via such litigation of double recovery or voiding of Claimants' investments in Argentina.
					5. Burdensome. Unduly burdensome, if not impossible, for Claimants to produce. Would require Claimants to identify, and procure all documents from, court proceedings anywhere in Italy commenced by non-parties to this arbitration.	5. It remains unduly burdensome, if not impossible, for Claimants to produce documents in the possession, custody or control of non-parties to this arbitration.

						allegedly public documents.
						7. Preclusion. Party Equality. Finally, in an analogous situation connected with the submission of documents related to the criminal proceedings, Claimants requested that the Tribunal issue an order whereby “Respondent is ordered to immediately produce to Claimants all documents from any such proceeding.”<sup>7</sup> In fact, the Tribunal responded to such request by instructing that “Respondent shall (...) provide Claimants with a copy of all documents provided to the relevant authorities as well as a copy of all documents received in connection with these proceedings, either from the relevant authorities directly or from other bodies or parties involved therein.”<sup>8</sup> The Argentine Republic submitted all the documents in its possession. Thus, Claimants cannot now object to the production of a type of documents Claimants themselves requested and the Tribunal cannot but decide in the same manner as it did with respect to Claimants’ request. To rule otherwise would imply a violation of party equality in this proceeding.	7. Party Equality is Not Implicated By Respondent’s Abusive Pursuit of Criminal Actions. As established in Procedural Order No. 13, Claimants previously requested documents relating to Italian criminal proceedings which Respondent had filed against individual Claimants. Respondent’s abusive filing of such proceedings against Claimants has absolutely no bearing on Respondent’s request for documents from proceedings involving non-parties to the arbitration. The two types of proceedings are not in any way similar and do not implicate any preclusion or party equality principles. Moreover, Respondent’s claim that it “submitted all the documents in its possession” regarding the Italian proceedings it instigated is demonstrably false. Rather, Respondent expressly refused to comply with the Tribunal’s production order in Procedural Order No. 13. Respondent’s invocation of its own non-compliance with the Tribunal’s production order is ironic, and certainly does not warrant the granting of its request here.

2.	Respondent	Any and all documents missing from the online database pertaining to Elvira Albanese, Alessandra Michelangeli, Stefano Polloni, and Carime Romanelli.	Claimants' Memorial on Phase 2, § III.A.c	These documents are purportedly, pursuant to Claimants' position which is not shared by the Argentine Republic, prima facie evidence of nationality and residence.	Claimants will provide responsive documents as to Claimants Alessandra Michelangeli, Stefano Polloni, and Carime Romanelli. These documents also are available in the Claimant Database. Claimant Elvira Albanese is to be withdrawn from the proceeding.	The Argentine Republic reserves the right to submit in due course its observations and objections to the documents provided, their introduction into the record and Claimants' submission respecting Elvira Albanese.	Claimants reserve the right to respond to any observations or objections raised by Respondent.	Provisionally Moot.  If not produced, Respondent may file a new application for production.
3.	Respondent	Any and all documents pertaining to any transaction made by Claimants or on Claimants' behalf involving security entitlements in Argentine sovereign bonds, from 1 November 2001 to date, including, but not limited to, bank certifications, purchase agreements, agreements or receipts. This request includes, but is not limited to, such documents as may be related to the acceptance of the 2005 and 2010 Exchange Offers.	For instance, Claimants' Memorial on Phase 2, § III.G	These documents might have an impact on the analysis of Claimants' characterization of the measures at issue in this arbitration.	1. Possession – Third Parties. Not in the possession, custody or control of Claimants to the extent that the request seeks documents held by TFA and documents related to participation by former Claimants in the Exchange Offers.	1. Possession – Third Parties and 2. Available to Respondent. Claimants do not deny that the security entitlements at stake in this arbitration have been subject to transactions from 1 November 2001 to date. Claimants only allege that Claimants do not have possession of documents that are in control or possession of TFA. It should be noted that the Argentine Republic did not request documents in the possession of TFA but rather in the possession of Claimants. It is not possible for Claimants not to be in possession of, or to have access to, the documents requested, to the extent that such documentation is related to transactions purportedly made by Claimants themselves.	1. Possession – Third Parties. Claimants maintain their objection to the extent that the requested documents are in the possession of TFA and/or TFA member banks, which are not party to this arbitration. The Tribunal ruled in Procedural Order No. 1 that "TFA is a third party to this arbitration and not a claimant; therefore, the Claimants may not be ordered to produced documents which might be in TFA's possession, custody or control." <sup>9</sup> The Tribunal later reaffirmed in its Decision on Jurisdiction that TFA is not a party, repeatedly referring to TFA as a "third party" <sup>10</sup> and ruling that, "[i]n the proceedings, TFA is to be seen as Claimants' agent." <sup>11</sup> By extension, the TFA member banks – who play no role whatsoever in this proceeding or in the coordination of Claimants' claims – also are not parties to this arbitration. Further to these prior Tribunal rulings, Claimants	Granted, with the exception of documents related to the acceptance of the 2005 and 2010 Exchange Offers by former Claimants.

					2. Available to Respondent. Claimants have already produced evidence of bond ownership, including bank certification letters and certification, in Attestation Form 3.3, that each Claimant continuously held the bond(s) since the date of purchase, had no intent of transferring the bond(s), and would inform TFA if they did transfer the bond(s). Respondent has not provided any rebuttal evidence as to any Claimant. 					3. Not Relevant/Material. Not relevant or material to Respondent's breaches of its Treaty and bond obligations, or the resolution of Claimants' claims. Documents relating to acceptance of the Exchange Offers by other bondholders are not relevant or material to the resolution of the claims of Claimants who did not accept the Exchange Offers and continue to participate in this arbitration.	3. Not Relevant/Material. Such documents might have an impact on the analysis of Claimants' characterization of the measures at issue in this arbitration, as well as on a potential assessment of the alleged damages. It is evident that if Claimants carried out Argentine security entitlement transactions after Argentina's default and/or tendered into either of the Exchanges, this might cast doubt on Claimants' arguments regarding such measures.	3. Not Relevant/Material. The requested documents relating to Claimants' investments in Argentina, including their acquisition and continued holding of Argentine bond(s), has no bearing on Respondent's measures at issue constituting breaches of its obligations vis-à-vis those investments. Claimants have produced voluminous evidence of their bondholdings, including for purposes of calculating damages; no further production is warranted. As noted, bondholders tendering into the Exchange Offers waived any pending or future claims against Argentina. Documents relating to acceptance of the Exchange Offers by non-parties are not in Claimants' possession and not relevant to resolution of their claims. More fundamentally, Respondent is paying those bondholders that tendered, and is well-aware of which former Claimants accepted its Exchange Offers.

Burdensome. It is less burdensome for Claimants than for the Argentine Republic to submit the documents requested.	4. Burdensome. Respondent's open-ended request for "[a]ny and all documents pertaining to any transaction made by Claimants" with respect to their bondholdings in the last 12 years – with no showing of relevance to the resolution of Claimants' claims – plainly fails to identify a narrow or specific category of documents, and imposes an unreasonable burden. See IBA Rules, Arts. 3(3), 9(2). Rejection of the request is warranted on that basis, regardless of the purported comparative burden as between Respondent and Claimants.

4.	Respondent	Any and all documents pertaining to Claimants' acceptance of the 2005 and 2010 Exchange Offers, whether connected with the security entitlements included in this proceeding or any other security entitlements in Argentine bonds.	For instance, Claimants' Memorial on Phase 2, § III.G.3-7.	The relevance of these documents might have an impact on Claimants' characterization of the measures at issue.	1. Possession – Third Parties. Not in the possession, custody or control of Claimants because bondholders who tendered into the Exchange Offers are not parties to this proceeding. 2. Available to Respondent. Documents showing acceptance of the Exchange Offers are in Argentina's possession, custody or control.	1. Possession – Third Parties and 2. Available to Respondent. These documents should be in the possession of Claimants and/or TFA insofar as the documents relate to Claimants that commenced this arbitration and that purportedly tendered into the Exchange Offer, and therefore, revoked their consent. The Argentine Republic does not have such documents for the 2005 Exchange Offer, and with respect to the 2010 Exchange Offer, procuring such documents is much more burdensome than for Claimants, since the number of bondholders who tendered into the Exchange is larger than the number of Claimants involved in this proceeding. Further, the Request comprises documents concerning security entitlements owned by Claimants which are not necessarily the subject of this arbitration, as it is possible for a Claimant to have opted to file proceedings on account of certain security entitlements and simultaneously tender into the Exchange Offer with respect to others.	1. Possession – Third Parties. No current Claimant can have tendered into either of the Exchange Offers because Respondent mandated as a condition of participating in its Exchange Offers that bondholders withdraw any pending claims against Argentina and/or waive the right to pursue future claims. Accordingly, documents relating to the participation by former Claimants or other non-parties are not in Claimants' possession, custody or control. Documents relating to participation in the Exchange Offers by former Claimants and purportedly held by non-party TFA are not in Claimants' possession, custody or control because the Tribunal has ruled that "TFA is a third party to this arbitration and not a claimant; therefore, the Claimants may not be ordered to produced documents which might be in TFA's possession, custody or control."<sup>13</sup> 2. Available to Respondent. Respondent does not refute, and effectively concedes, that documents relating to the 2010 Exchange Offer are in its possession, custody or control. Respondent's claim that it "does not have such documents for the 2005 Exchange Offer" is not credible and plainly refuted by the record. As just one example, it was discussed at length at the May 2012 procedural hearing that Respondent collected and organized information on all bondholders who tendered into both the 2005 and 2010	Rejected (in custody of Respondent).

Not Relevant/Material. The relevance of these documents has a direct impact on Claimants' claim, insofar as Claimants allege that their purported investment consists of their security entitlements in Argentine bonds. These documents might have an impact on the analysis of Claimants' characterization of the measures at issue in this arbitration as well as on a potential assessment of the alleged damages.	3. Not Relevant/Material. Respondent's conclusory statements do not refute, or even address, the fundamental fact that the participation of non-parties in the Exchange Offers is irrelevant and immaterial to the claims of Claimants – who did not participate in the Offers. Likewise, documents relating to bonds that are not at issue in this arbitration, whether or not those bonds purportedly were tendered into the Exchange Offers, are irrelevant to Claimants' claims relating to bonds that are at issue here. Respondent is paying those bondholders that tendered, and is well-aware of which former Claimants accepted its Exchange Offers.

These considerations as to non-parties are all the more applicable here because the request seeks revocation documents submitted by non-party former Claimants, and not any documents from participating Claimants.

Annex K identifies those Claimants that were added to the arbitration prior to the registration of the Request for Arbitration, and has no bearing on the bondholdings of those Claimants. Annex L identifies those former Claimants that have withdrawn from the arbitration, and thus whose bondholdings are no longer at issue in this proceeding. Accordingly, neither Annex has any bearing on the evidence of current bond ownership that each participating Claimant has provided – and certainly does not in any way suggest that Claimants have broken any purported commitment with respect to the status of their bondholdings.
